Babylonian Creation Legends. The story of the creation, as told on the clay tablets of ancient Babylon, is interesting. Several deities appear to interesting. Several defties appear to have been regarded as in existence at the beginning of things. At least two, Apsu and Tiamat, represented chaos, and the former rebelled against the gods in consequence. The chief struggle was between him and ha, whose son, Bel, created the world. Man was made by Marmuk, who in spite of the difference in name may have been idendifference in name may have been iden-tical with Bel. The creation of man was the culminating event of the his-tory. Marmuk told Ea that he intended to perform his task and asked his father to behead him. Man was to be made out of Marmuk's blood and bone. Marmuk appears to have survived demarmus appears to have capitation, as he subsequently took part in the councils of the gods.

Many parallels between these legends and the Hebrew story of the creations. tion can be detected by scholars. The idea that seven days were devoted to the work may have long antedated Abraham's time. The oldest tablets yet discovered are not originals, but copies. These date back only 668-623 B. C.

Benton and His Wife.

Senator Benton of Missouri was a model of tenderness and devotion to his invalid wife. It seems that during her later years her mind became im-paired by a paralytic stroke, but she never failed to recognize her husband and was fond of being near him. Once when her distinguished husband was entertaining a foreign prince in the drawing room Mrs. Benton came to the door in a state of undress and stood gazing at her husband. The atstood gazing at her husannd. The at-tention of the company being attracted in her direction, Benton turned to see what the attraction was. On perceiv-ing his poor wife he immediately rose, went to her, took her tenderly by the hand and, leading her into the room said, "My dear, Prince So-and-so; prince, Mrs. Benton, sir." Then affectionately placing a hassock for her by the side of his chair he resumed his seat, and, leaving one of his hands in hers for her to toy with, he went on with the conversation. The prince was quick to take in the situation and adapted himself to the occasion with consummate tact, while all the Missourians were deeply affected.

There are always two kinds of silk hats, each of the best quality, on sale in London. One is the strictly fashionable model, "the latest," or whatever c. L. LEADBEATER, one may choose to call it, which is reable model, "the latest," or whatever tailed in the west end at from a guinea to 25 shillings. The other is the style which immediately preceded it and has wholesale and retail druggists "gone out," although the quality is un-changed. This is usually called the "city" hat and costs 10 shillings. The distinction is a very peculiar one. Em-ployees of large London commercial suses are not expected to be up to the hilt in fashion, and if they are it is sure to be resented by their employers. A London city magnate would not be seen wearing the same shape hat as

In 1834 the Primitive Methodists of Burnley issued an edict against Sunday courting. They regarded it as so serious an offense against the dignity of the Sabbath that they actually passed in solemn and sober earnest the fol-lowing stern and autocratic minute: "That we do not allow young men and young women of our society to court with each other on Sunday; neither do we allow our single men and women we allow our single men and women the street of the st we allow our single men a to walk in the street together, arm in arm, at any time; neither do we allow
